A schedule of reinforcement is basically a rule stating which instances of behavior will be reinforced. In some cases, a behavior might be reinforced every time it occurs. Sometimes, a behavior might not be reinforced at all. Either positive reinforcement or negative reinforcement may be used as a part of operant conditioning.

How Reinforcement Schedules Work - Verywell Mind

So a variable ratio schedule is similar to a fixed ratio schedule except the number of responses needed to receive the reinforcement changes after each reinforcer is presented. So put simply, a variable ratio schedule is literally a series of fixed ratio schedules that just change. What matters in the end is the average number of correct responses.
